

agropolis fondation

Supporting agricultural research for sustainable development

Supporting agricultural research for sustainable development

- To promote and support high-level research and higher education (training-through-research) as well as to broaden international research partnerships
- To address issues related to increasing demand for plants for food and non-food uses; interaction between climate change and crops; prevention and management of risks in crop and food systems
- To contribute to sustainable agricultural development in temperate, Mediterranean and tropical regions

www.agropolis-fondation.fr

Charter members

